Schaumberg and his firm have received recognition from publications such as Chambers USA: America's Leading Lawyers for Business, The National Law Journal, The Legal 500, Corporate Counsel, IP Law & Business, Managing Intellectual Property, SuperLawyers and the Washingtonian.

A long-time advocate of the importance of Section 337 as an effective border enforcement mechanism against unfair import competition, Mr. Schaumberg has been a pioneer in various trade bar groups and associations with an interest in the statute. He helped found the ITC Trial Lawyers Association, was its first President, and remains on its Executive Committee. Mr. Schaumberg was appointed to serve as the first chair of the newly created ITC Committee of the American Intellectual Property Law Association. He also served as the first vice-chair of the International Trade Commission (ITC) Committee of the Intellectual Property Owners Association. He is a member of the Intellectual Property Law Sections of both the District of Columbia Bar and the American Bar Association, as well as a member of the Federal Circuit Bar Association.

Mr. Schaumberg has lectured extensively before bar groups on international trade law and has published numerous articles on Section 337 practice. He was selected by the U.S. Trade Representative to serve on the bi-national panels convened under the United States-Canada Free-Trade Agreement to provide review of antidumping and countervailing duty decisions.

Mr. Schaumberg was born in Amsterdam, Holland. He received his undergraduate degree from Yale University and his LL.B. from Harvard Law School. He also did one year of undergraduate work at the University of Paris, France and one year of post-graduate legal study at the University of Frankfurt, Germany. He is proficient in German, French, and Dutch. Mr. Schaumberg's international background as well as his experience in antitrust, business and administrative law have enabled him to represent both domestic and foreign clients effectively in connection with international trade issues.
